Results 2022

This year we were pleased to discover that the overall quality of SA gins has definitely improved. Contrary to previous years, South African producers are finally realising that gin drinkers can identify synthetic flavours and actually prefer the more authentic, natural, subtle juniper forward gins. The London Dry type gin category has definitely increased in volume and we found less colourful, 'candy flavoured' gins this year which is a good thing. Thankfully most producers have also realised that making their own base spirit is very unforgiving and we found most gins this year were made on a good base spirit. SA producers are still highly innovative – this year we had a number of litchi gins, a mint gin, a saffron gin, a lemongrass gin and even a coffee flavoured gin – with most respecting the need for juniper dominance and restrained flavours.
